Museum of American Finance to Host the President of NFL Ventures for Super Bowl Week Event

Eric Grubman, former NFL CFO, to be interviewed by Consuelo Mack on "The Business of the NFL"

New York, NY: On Tuesday, January 28, the Museum of American Finance will host an event with Eric Grubman, executive vice president of the NFL and president of NFL Ventures, on "The Business of the NFL." Mr. Grubman will be interviewed by acclaimed financial journalist Consuelo Mack about the business and financial aspects of the world's most lucrative sports league. The event will be held from 6:00 – 7:30 pm at the Museum's home at 48 Wall Street in New York City.

Mr. Grubman joined the NFL in May 2004 and served as chief financial officer and senior manager of business operations during his tenure. He is a former partner of Goldman Sachs & Co. and a former co-president of Constellation Energy Group, a Fortune 500 company located in Baltimore.

Consuelo Mack has had a long and distinguished career in business journalism and in 2005 she launched a weekly half-hour program on public television devoted to helping Americans build and protect their wealth over the long-term. Now in its ninth season, "Consuelo Mack WEALTHTRACK" has been dubbed the "Cramer Antidote" by the press, and Money magazine named Mack "The Best Money TV Host."

Media Access: Members of the press are invited to attend this event. The presentation will be followed by Q&A and reception. Please contact Kristin Aguilera, Deputy Director, at kaguilera@moaf.org or 212-908-4695 for media access or additional details.

About the Museum of American Finance
